DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C.

121:

- I. Claims 1-30, 52, 33-42, drawn to a wireless system for transmitting and receiving a plurality of data packets in which the system comprises a plurality of directional antenna sectors each having a respective associated three-dimensional region of space for transmitting and receiving electromagnetic signals, classified in class 455, subclass 63.5.
- II. Claims 43-51, 53-57, drawn to how the antenna sectoring is being implemented, classified in class 343, subclass 757.

2. Inventions I and II are related as process and apparatus for its practice.

The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the method or process can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus such as a wireless communication system having smart antennas and comprising a plurality of wireless transmit/receive units in which in an access point based wireless local area network (WLAN), multiple stations (STAs) may be associated with a given AP at any given time. If the multiple-access scheme is Carrier sense multiple access collision avoidance (CSMA/CA) such as in 802.11 WLANs, any STA may transmit a data packet also called a frame to its associated STAs has transmitted a packet after the packet has been completely received and decoded based on the source address contained in the medium access control header of the packet. An AP may also be equipped with a smart antenna in order to improve the signal to noise ratio of AP-to-STA transmissions as well as STA-to-AP transmissions. The smart antenna in this context is referred to as a set of N antennas that have different radiation patterns such as by pointing in different directions or a smart antenna.

Art Unit: 2618

4. Restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper because all these inventions listed in this action are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious search and examination burden if restriction were not required because one or more of the following reasons apply:

- (a) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification;
- (b) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art due to their recognized divergent subject matter;
- (c) the inventions require a different field of search (for example, searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries);
- (d) the prior art applicable to one invention would not likely be applicable to another invention;

(e) the inventions are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected invention.

If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable upon the elected invention.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
